

PLANS DISCUSSED FOR CENTENNIAL

Recommended That Celebration be Held Seven Days, Including Home Coming in This City.

PAGEANT FOR BROWNSTOWN

Superintendent Thomas of Medora Suggests Local Celebrations in Connection With Schools.

Committees appointed at the last session of the Jackson County Centennial Association reported at an enthusiastic meeting at the city library today. Practically all the representatives from the several townships were present and reported increasing interest in the plans for observing the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of Indiana and Jackson county. Superintendent T. A. Mott, county chairman, presided at the meeting and Superintendent J. H. Thomas, of the Medora schools, was secretary.

The committee named to outline plans for the county celebration made several recommendations. Superintendent Mott is chairman of the committee and the report was given by Alpha Cox, a member. It was recommended that the celebration continue for seven days, beginning on Sunday when all the churches in the county would be asked to observe the centennial with appropriate sermons and services. Many opportunities for strong sermons could be found in the early history of the county as the sturdy pioneers succeeded against many obstacles and almost without exception were ardent church members and active in religious affairs. It was also suggested that the pastor explain the important place held by the religious denominations in the pioneer days of the county.

Another day, it was suggested, will be devoted to the celebration of Valleria, one of the most historical spots in the county. It was at that place that the old fort which sheltered the early settlers from the invading Indians was located. The celebration will be held at Valleria if the present plans are carried out.

Another day will be given over to a celebration at Brownstown. This will be largely in charge of County Agent A. D. Cobb who will emphasize the advance in agricultural activities. He intends to arrange for an elaborate pageant showing the settlers entering the county in their white top wagons, the crude manner in which

VERNON TOWNSHIP PLANS UNUSUAL CELEBRATION

Pageant Showing Home, Social and Religious Condition of Settlers is Proposed.

RESIDENTS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

O. M. Foster, of Vernon township, has some elaborate plans in mind for the Centennial celebration in his township. He is a booster for Vernon and believes that the best way to advertise it is to show the advancements that have been made during the last century.

Mr. Foster is a member of the committee and in a general way has outlined the celebration. He proposes to have a pageant showing the settlers coming into the community, the social conditions, the religious movements and other features that characterized early settlement. The people in the township are enthusiastic over the celebration plans and if the present program is carried out Vernon township will have a pageant that will be well worthy anybody's time to witness.

It is expected that other townships will formulate plans for celebrations at once. The movement to observe the centennial year is spreading to all parts of the county and new suggestions are being made each day. The committee has made a splendid start and the present year will be one long to be remembered.

HERE'S ANOTHER ONE—THIS FROM MISSOURI

Following closely upon the announcement that Republican advertising has been instrumental in selling groceries in Philadelphia, comes the equally unexpected news that the pull of Republican advertising news extends as far west as Missouri, and opens up a trade field that local merchants had supposed belonged exclusively to Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago.

The Fashion store, South Chestnut street, yesterday received a letter from Rockport, Mo., enclosing money for a silk waist which had been noticed in their ad. in the Republican. And so they come from Philadelphia, from Missouri—and from Seymour and Jackson county. Who says people don't read the ads?

T. A. COLEMAN WILL SPEAK AT CONFERENCE TUESDAY

County Agent Cobb Arranges Meeting to Discuss Plans for Advancing Department.

MERCHANTS ASKED TO ATTEND

County Agent A. D. Cobb has arranged for an agricultural conference at his office in the court house at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He has been notified that T. A. Coleman, assistant state leader of county agents, will attend and will give an address. The purpose of the conference, as explained by Mr. Cobb, is to hear recommendations from those who are interested in the county agent work. Merchants, bankers, professional men and farmers are urged to attend this meeting and express their views as to the best methods of conducting this work. Mr. Cobb says that his department is of a benefit to all the people of the county and while particular attention is devoted to agricultural work other lines of activity are directly benefited.

"We desire to obtain a closer co-operation in this work," said the county agent, "and for this reason are calling this meeting. The merchants, bankers, farmers and others who will attend this meeting are to serve as an advisory board to the county agent's department. We want suggestions from the bankers and merchants as to the best methods of making this department the most valuable to the entire county. One thing to be considered is a fund from which the expenses can be paid. I believe that if a certain amount were subscribed by each one interested for the entire year with the assurance that no other contributions would be asked it would be much more satisfactory than raising subscriptions when the various projects are decided upon. If we had a yearly budget we could apportion the money to the departments and would know in advance how much we had for each."

WILSON WILL TAKE TIME ANSWERING RESOLUTION

Information Concerning Mexican Situation Held by Him is of Confidential Nature.

By United Press. Washington, January 22—President Wilson will not respond for at least a month or six weeks to Senator Fall's resolution adopted by the senate, requesting information on this government's negotiations with Mexico.

It was authoritatively stated today that the response may not be made for even a longer time. Much of the information, it was stated, is of a confidential nature and must be handled with great care. It was understood to be the hope of the president that before he sends that data to congress conditions in Mexico will have reached such a point where they will vindicate his plans. The president's position is taken to believe that his plan to give Carranza a chance to prove himself, has the endorsement of the country.

DISTRICT MEETING AT NORTH VERNON

Enthusiastic Gathering of Republicans to Discuss Provisions of The New Primary Law.

EVERY COUNTY REPRESENTED

State Secretary L. W. Henley Leads Conference on Requirements Under The New Law.

Every county in the Fourth congressional district was represented at the Republican district meeting at North Vernon today. There was a large attendance and those present were ready for active and aggressive political work. There was plenty of enthusiasm and determination to make the campaign of 1916 a winner both in the state and nation.

L. W. Henley, secretary of the Republican state committee was present and discussed the provisions of the new primary law. A general conference was held discussing various phases of the law and the interpretations that have been agreed upon by a committee of lawyers representing all political parties.

Judge John M. Lewis, of this city, district chairman, called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Henley who took charge of the conference on the primary law.

The new primary election law requires that all candidates for places on county or township tickets must file formal notices of their candidacy with the clerks of their circuit courts by February 5; that candidates for congress, the state legislature, prosecuting attorney and judges of superior, probate and criminal courts must file notices with the secretary of state by February 5; that every candidate for delegate to the state convention must file a petition signed by ten legal voters of his county by February 5, and that candidates for precinct committeemen must file formal notice with the clerk of the circuit court by February 5.

The committee which has the interpretation of the primary law under way has decided, along with the state chairmen and the attorney-general, that the law means that candidates for United States senator and Governor must have a majority of all the first-choice votes cast in the primary, and if any such candidate does not get a majority, the state convention shall make the nomination. It seems probable under this

HIGH SCHOOL RUNS UP BIG SCORE ON NORTH VERNON

Keep Up Continuous Bombardment of Basket and Defeat Old Rivals By Score of 52 to 20.

PLAY AT WASHINGTON NEXT

The Seymour high school basketball team romped away from the North Vernon team last night, running up a count of 52 to 20. The locals were late in getting started, and allowed the visitors to score seven points before they were able to locate the basket. When they once got started however, there was no letting up in their work, and they kept up a steady bombardment of the basket and when the whistle ended the half had accumulated an even thirty points, while thirteen was the sum total of North Vernon's efforts. The second half was almost as one sided, the locals adding twenty-two points to their total and holding the visitors down to seven.

The North Vernon boys put up a good game, but the brilliant passing and goal shooting of the purple and white performers was too much for them, and when the locals once got organized it was only a question of how big the score would be. A large crowd witnessed the game.

Next Friday the locals go to Washington to play the second game with that school. Seymour won the

INDUSTRIAL BODY GIVES NEW RULING

Holds Drink Prevents Recovery of Damages Under Indiana Workmen's Compensation Law.

EMPLOYER IS HELD BLAMELESS

Board Rules that Intoxication is not Natural and Inherent Element of Human Conduct.

That an employee who is injured while under the influence of liquor is barred from collecting damages from his employer under the Indiana Workmen's Compensation law, is the finding of the state industrial board. The ruling is of state-wide importance and is of interest to every workman and employer. The opinion holds that when a workman follows his occupation while in an intoxicated condition he does so at his own risk and further that the employer has the right to discharge such workman because of that act.

The opinion of the industrial board was given in the case which was brought to its attention by the widow of Joseph Finley against the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railroad Company. Finley was employed at McDoel, Ind., and while under the influence of liquor was run down and killed by a train while on his way to work.

The board held that "Sec. 8 of the compensation act clearly expresses the intention that no industry shall be charged with the burden of indemnifying an injured employee whose injury is proximately caused by his own intoxication." A drunken employee is held to be guilty of such willful misconduct as to preclude a recovery of compensation. The Finley case is the first of its kind to come before the Indiana board.

"On legal and economical grounds the workmen's compensation act treats the result of such accidents and injuries as naturally incident to the work; that, being such, the expense thereof is naturally and logically a part of the legitimate cost of operation, just the same as the repair and replacement of broken and worn-out machinery," read an opinion of the board.

"Intoxication is not a natural and inherent element of human conduct; it is not a contagious infection; it is voluntary self-abasement; it is not a natural incident of the work in which the employee is engaged, and naturally and logically injuries and death resulting proximately there-

FAITHFUL COLLIE GUARDS BODY OF HIS DEAD MASTER

"River Hermit" Near Rivervale Dies Near Lonely Cabin Which was His Home Many Years.

WAS A NATIVE OF KENTUCKY

The following is taken from the Bedford Mail concerning the death of Stephen King, "the River Hermit," near Rivervale.

With his head wedged between a slab of stone and a small bush, the body of Stephen King was found at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night a few feet from the shack in which he had made his home on the Root farm, across the river north of Rivervale.

On guard beside the body of its master was a large collie dog, and it was fortunate that the young men who found the body, were frequent visitors at the King place and were on excellent terms with the dog.

King had been in poor health for some time suffering from dropsy, and the young men, Ovan Root, Therman Bright and Dewey Mathews, had been in the habit of making frequent visits to the place to look after King. They had been in the habit of bringing milk and other provisions to him and Thursday at 1 o'clock had paid him a visit. At that time he was in as good health as usual and was up and about the place. When the young men arrived Thursday evening at

DINING CAR AND DAY COACH CARRIED OVER EMBANKMENT

By United Press. Seattle, January 22—Caught in an avalanche of snow which roared down the mountain side, a dining car and day coach of the Great Northern Train No. 25, was cut out from the rest of the train and carried over a 200-foot embankment near Scenic, today.

Several persons were reported killed. The passenger train was enroute to Seattle from Spokane. The report stated that three persons were killed. The coaches uncoupled from the train were buried under sixty feet of snow and debris, the avalanche uprooting trees and rocks in its plunge down the mountain. Sixty passengers were on the train.

RULING IS MADE IN THE CITY ENGINEER'S CASE

Four Paragraphs of Douglass' Answer to Complaint Are Held Good by Court.

DECEMBER TERM ADJOURNED

Another step towards the final settlement of the city engineer's case was taken this afternoon when Judge Swails in circuit court passed upon the demurrer filed by the attorney for W. H. Right, the plaintiff, to the answer of E. B. Douglass to the complaint. The demurrer to the first, third, fourth and fifth paragraphs of the answer was overruled while that to the second paragraph was sustained. Further pleadings may yet be made in the case before it is ready for trial but it is stated that several points are purely questions of fact to be determined after evidence is introduced.

The first paragraph of the answer was a general denial and was held good. The second alleged that Douglass was duly appointed civil engineer, qualified and served in that capacity until the appointment of Rights. The other paragraphs questioned the right of the mayor to oust Douglass from office until after charges had been filed and the defendant given an opportunity to defend them at a public hearing.

With several questions of fact to be determined it is likely that the case will go to trial. Other pleadings may be filed, but as this is the last day of the December term nothing can be done towards completing the issues until the next term of court.

Judge Swails today handed down a decision in the case of Griffiths against Donner, which was venued from Bartholomew county. The trial was held the last term of court and the arguments were made at this term. The court has had the case under advisement since that time. He held in favor of Griffiths who asked that

RUSSIAN STEAMER SYGNA RUSHES BACK TO QUARANTINE

Vessel Reported to be Carrying War Munitions to Arch Angel, Russia—Sailed Yesterday.

By United Press.

New York, January 22.—The Norwegian steamer, Sygna, reported to be carrying war munitions to the Russian port of Arch Angel, rushed back to quarantine at daybreak today with a fire raging in hold No. 1 forward. She sent out calls for aid. Several fire boats from New York and Brooklyn hurried to quarantine to assist her. No information regarding the origin of the fire was given.

The Sygna, a 4000-ton vessel, left port yesterday shortly before noon supposedly headed for Vladivostok, Russia, though quarantine officers reported she signaled she was enroute to Arch Angel.

RANCHMAN FALLS BEFORE MEXICANS

BLAME PUT ON CARRANZISTAS

Douglass Lawrence Escapes to Border—Authorities Promise Punishment of Outlaws.

By United Press.

El Paso, Tex., January 22—The body of the twenty-fourth American murdered in Mexico in the past two weeks, was brought here today. It was the corpse of Bert L. Acres, a ranchman, who crossed the border into Mexico last night to track some cattle bandits had rustled from his property.

Two Mexicans who took part in the killing of Acres only seventeen miles south of El Paso, were under arrest in Juarez. They claimed self defense.

With Douglass Lawrence, another American, Acres reached the little village of San Lorenzo, Mexico. Acres saw his cattle in a corral back of a Mexican adobe house. Several Mexicans, all armed with guns, immediately opened fire on the two Americans. Acres was instantly killed, shot in the back.

Lawrence, mounted, fled for the border. His horse was twice nipped by bullets but continued the journey. Lawrence told the story to officials, insisting that several of the Mexicans were dressed in uniforms of Carranzista soldiers.

Ahead of the protest formally lodged by the American officials, Mexican authorities at Juarez obtained the prisoners' statements and assured the El Paso officials that if found true the murderers would be punished.

Francisco Villa, with four hundred men, is encamped twelve miles south of Madero, according to official reports received here today. Fear was felt for the safety of a large American Mormon colony near Cafes Grandes.

GENERAL CAZAFEF DENIES CAPTURE OF CHIEF BANDIT

Villa Reported to be Securely Fortified in the Mountains Around Chihuahua.

MAY HOLD OUT INDEFINITELY

By United Press.

El Paso, January 22—Francisco Villa was reported surrounded by Carranzista troops in the mountains of Chihuahua.

This report by General Cazafef, who commands the three companies hemming in the bandit chief, was made to General Herrera at Chihuahua and resulted in the premature announcement that Villa was a prisoner.

Governor General Enriquez, of Chihuahua, on official business in Juarez today gave this explanation of the reported capture while pointing out that the outlaw bandit could probably hold out in his mountain hiding places indefinitely.

Enriquez has heard that Villa even took a third wife, and that his followers have women in their camps.

MEXICANS BLOW UP TRAIN

Refugee Tells of Death of Twenty-—Shot For Defending U. S.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 22.—Governor Ignacio Enriquez, of the state of Chihuahua, arrived in Juarez, accompanied by his staff. "I came here to organize the civil government of the state of Chihuahua on the border," Governor Enriquez said. On the report of Villa's capture he said:

"I have no knowledge as to where the report started and I have had no confirmation of it. The military authorities are trying to get news from their outlying commands regarding the report."

He added that he did not credit the report. The governor declared that a campaign against General Benjamin Arguedo and his allied forces was about to be launched.

Official advice to the Carranza consulate here stated that "first chief" Venustiano Carranza and his government heads had returned to Queretaro to resume work on the organization of the provisional cabinet. The party has been at Celaya for the past few days, the consul reported.

Mexican Consul Garcia wired General Jacinto Trevino at Chihuahua, a request from the United States officials asking the Carranza government to secure from the Chihuahua state treasurer twenty-five bars of silver valued at $25,000 claimed as property of the American owned "Yocivivi mines."

Twenty-three persons were killed near Puebla recently when a passenger train was blown up, supposedly by Zapata adherents, according to A. J. Trumbo, wealthy mine owner of the state of Oaxaca, Mexico, who arrived here.

Only one passenger survived, it was reported. Mr. Trumbo said the train which was blown up was immediately ahead of the one on which he was traveling from the City of Mexico.

"Several volleys were fired into our train," added Mr. Trumbo, who left with his wife for Los Angeles. With them was H. C. Tanner of the City of Mexico, who is convalescing from a bullet wound inflicted, he said, by a military officer, when Tanner resented insulting references to the United States.

The story the party brought with them from the interior of Mexico reported typhus fever even more prevalent through Mexico than accounts had stated, declaring that a full tenth of the population of Pachuca had the disease.

Mr. Trumbo's story of the blowing up of a passenger train near Puebla is the first intimation of such a tragedy to reach the border.

IMMEDIATE RETALIATION

Germany Very Much Excited Over the Baralong Case.

London, Jan. 22.—While the Baralong case continued to furnish German papers with a subject for vitriolic attacks on England, coupled with an unanimous demand for immediate retaliation, no hint is given regarding the nature of the reprisals to be taken. Fear is expressed in some circles here that Germany will decide to execute thirty British officers now prisoners of the Germans. This rumor is often repeated and is believed by many.

It is impossible to trace its source to any official information. But it is certain that energetic action is forthcoming to satisfy the public clamor voiced by the German press which demands "fearful punishment of England's degradation."

POLICEMAN KILLED IN CHICAGO HOLDUP

Lone Bandit Robs Office In Business District.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—A lone bandit held up and robbed the offices of Thomas Cook & Sons, tourist agents, 15 East Jackson boulevard, shot and dangerously wounded the cashier, E. L. Walsh, shot and killed Policeman B. A. Johnson, who attempted to block him at the entrance, and finally escaped with $900. A woman accomplice who sat at the wheel of an auto near the curbstone, jumped from the motor and disappeared in the crowds. State street was filled with homeward bound shoppers at the time. The shooting caused the wildest panic. The ticket office is but a few feet east of State street.

"Hands up, everybody," ordered the highwayman as he came toward the cashier's counter with a revolver in his hand. Walsh started to reach for a revolver. Immediately there was a report and Walsh fell, with a bullet in his chest. The robber seized the pile of bills, tucked them into his pocket and backed toward the door. Policeman Johnson was summoned from the street crossing and reached the doorway just as the robber was stepping out. As Johnson started to seize the robber he fired, the bullet passing through his heart. Johnson fell dying on the doorstep.

By this time the street was almost impassable. Women had rushed screaming into doorways.

The robber saw that it was impossible for him to reach the machine where the woman was waiting with the engine running. He ran east where another machine was standing. He jumped into the seat beside the driver and ordered him to drive away.

FEAR DO-NOTHING POLICY

Wilson's Speaking Tour Will Be Devoted to Arousing Public Interest on National Defense Issue, to Prevent Possible Inaction by Congress.

Washington, Jan. 22.—It is becoming more evident day by day that the congress, in adopting a policy for better preparedness for national defense, will disregard the advice of both radicals and the ultra-conservatives. The situation with which the legislative body has to deal is aptly illustrated by some of the speeches recently made by publicists. Theodore Roosevelt, in his address at Philadelphia, advocated the most far-reaching program.

Here in Washington Oswald Garrison Villard, delivered a speech in which he severely criticized the present preparedness program on the ground that it provides for doing too much.

The president is committed to a course that lies between the two extremes. His sudden decision to appeal to the country is to arouse the people to the importance of doing something in the way of preparedness or congress probably will not do anything.

The division in the congress is not along party lines. The statement was made at the White House that the speeches the president will make on his forthcoming trip will in no sense be partisan.

The officers of the army who are giving their views to the two military committees in the congress are strongly urging universal military service for young men.

The administration does not believe the country is yet ready to adopt the universal military service policy. There appears to be a growing sentiment in the military committees in favor of the federal government taking over the national guard and building it up into the strong military force.

The executive committee of the Association of Military Schools and Colleges asked the house military committee, to give the forty-two private institutions in the association better facilities for training their 10,000 students to become reserve officers.

Colonel S. C. Jones, of the New York military institute, said 5,000 boys were graduated from the schools last year, all of whom had been trained along lines laid down at West Point and were fitted to become second lieutenants of volunteers.

Comprehensive plans for use of the railroads in mobilizing the army are being drawn up by Secretary Garrison in co-operation with a committee of railroad officials, headed by Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern railway.

Secretary Daniels and the navy advisory board have already begun collecting data on manufacturing plants.

It was learned that just before Grasianno was arrested near the Park Row entrance to the Brooklyn bridge, he had not only been prowling around the outer walls and arcades of the municipal building, but had been inside the structure also with his bomb.

The two prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Levy in the Tombs police court, charged with violating the Sullivan law.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS SWEEP BY FLOODS

Thousands of Acres Under Water; Hundreds Marooned.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Northern Illinois is facing flood conditions such as have not been experienced for a decade. Small streams were swollen into torrents and larger rivers overflowed their banks and inundated thousands of acres, marooned hundreds of homes, threatened pollution of water supplies and did damage estimated at many hundred thousand dollars.

Joliet and nearby towns suffered from the overflow of the Des Plaines river and its tributaries, which inundated the village of Rockdale to a depth of six feet, swept away a bridge at Channahon and inundated the lower section of Joliet.

In the valley of the Fox river, from Elgin to Ottawa, there was flood damage, the greatest danger being at Aurora, where whole sections of the city were flooded.

Further north the Rock river and its confluents, the Pecatonica and Sugar rivers, threatened the destruction of interurban and steam railroad bridges. Boats and rafts took the place of wagons and automobiles in many towns and cities.

No loss of life was reported, but many persons were assisted from their homes. In Chicago a warning to boil the water was issued by the health authorities because of possible sewage pollution and all day firemen were kept busy pumping out flooded basements.

The East bridge over the Des Plaines river at Channahon, ten miles southwest of Joliet, was swept away. The 200-ton structure resisted the crush of ice and water for hours, but gave way when the river had risen twelve feet and great ice cakes crashed against the superstructure.

London, Jan. 22.—A powerful allied squadron, presumably part of the fleet withdrawn from the Dardanelles, bombarded Porto Lagos, the Bulgarian seaport on the Aegean, which lies in the immediate neighborhood eastward of the Greek border and about one hundred miles east of Salonica. The naval guns silenced the port's defense fort's cannon, whereupon a force was landed. This force proceeded northward in the direction of the important Bulgarian coastal railway, with the object of cutting it, but was met by a superior Bulgarian detachment and forced to withdraw. The Bulgarian guns emplacements were destroyed prior to the re-embarkation.

Sixteen allied warships participated in the attack.

On the same day an allied squadron of twenty-four units launched a vigorous fire against Dedegatch, the chief Bulgarian port on the Aegean. The two attacks are generally understood here to be the opening of operations on a large scale against the Bulgarian coast, with the object of the landing of a large force, and the ultimate aim of cutting the orient line in Bulgaria. These operations, if successful also would compel the Bulgars to withdraw important forces from the Macedonian front and might eventually go a long way toward influencing Greece's attitude.

The Russian forces in Persia, which are trying to form a junction with the British in Mesopotamia, are said almost to have wiped out the main Turkish army, which is fleeing before the czar's troops in confusion. Great quantities of ammunition, guns and other booty have been captured.

A dispatch from Teheran announces that the Russian columns have pushed to and occupied the town of Sultanabad, 150 miles southwest of Teheran and about an equal distance northwest of Isfahan. The garrisons and the German consul have fled to Bouroudjir, fifty miles west of Sultanabad.

The Russians still have several hundred miles to go before they can join the British forces in Mesopotamia. The latter, however, have been strengthened. General Alymer, with volunteers, having approached Kut-el-Amara, where a British expeditionary force has been surrounded by the Turks. With the Russian and British forming a junction, it is believed almost certain here that Bagdad will fall to the allies. The next step, it is hinted, would be an overland march upon Constantinople.

Newspaper dispatches from Vienna, by way of Switzerland and Paris, report the renewal of active operations by the Austrians against the Montenegrins. One Austrian army is declared to be marching along the Adriatic toward Antivari, the seaport of Scutari, Albania, while detachments of the Austrian forces are said to be within fifteen miles of Scutari itself. Recent dispatches have stated that the seat of the Montenegrin government had been established at Scutari.

Only minor artillery activity and mining operations are reported on the western front.

BURNS BARN FOR REVENGE

Lester Haggard Surrenders to Sheriff and Makes Confession.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 22.—Lester Haggard, age twenty-four, is in jail here, having confessed burning a barn on the farm of Edward Christie near Amo. Haggard surrendered to Sheriff Gentry, saying he "had his revenge."

Haggard was accused of stealing $3 when employed by Christie in 1907, and he objected when the money was taken from his wages. He was indicted, tried and sentenced to the penitentiary. Haggard on his release was employed again by Christie. Haggard deliberately started the fire, he says, which destroyed the barn, horses, live stock and implements. He then came to Danville and told Sheriff Gentry what he had done, saying:

"You can do anything with me you want to, but I have had my revenge and don't care what becomes of me. I guess Christie is sorry now he didn't let me keep that $3."

MAY REGULATE INTEREST

Some National Banks Found Guilty of Usury Interest Rates.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Legislation that will give the federal government power to prohibit all national banks from charging usurious rates of interest on loans may result from testimony given by the house committee on rules by John S. Williams, comptroller of the currency.

It is likely that corrective legislation will be at once proposed by the banking and currency committee as recommended by Chairman Glass. This legislation will probably make it a criminal offense for a national bank officer to countenance a charge for a loan in excess of the legal limitation prescribed by the state laws.

It was found that one bank was charging 1,000 per cent in some cases; other banks averaged 25 and 40 per cent on all loans.

DETECTIVE IS INDICTED

Secret Bills Returned Against Toledo, O., Police Official.

Toledo, O., Jan. 22.—Two secret indictments against Lewis B. Tracy, captain of detectives, were made public here. Blackmail and bribery are charged. The indictments were returned Sept. 20, last, when the grand jury indicted Carl H. Keller, former mayor, and William Delhanty, inspector of detectives.

Tracy is specifically charged with having unlawfully accepted $500 from Nellie Schwinn, former resort keeper. The blackmail indictment charges Tracy extorted $50 from the Schwinn woman on another occasion.

Will Aid Montenegrins.

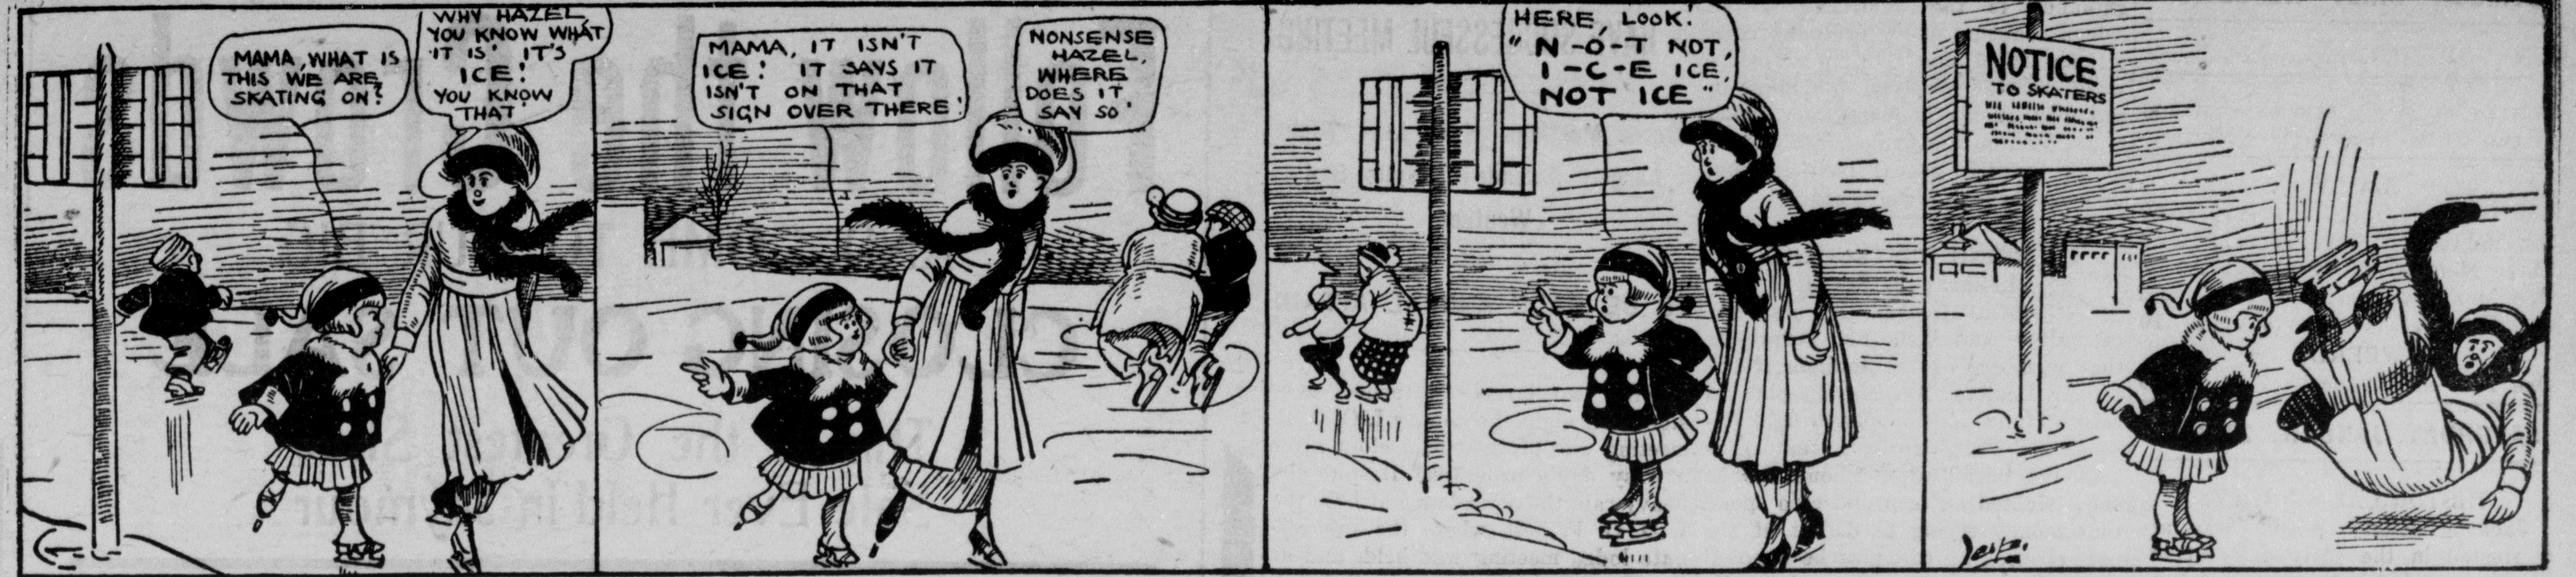

London, Jan. 22.—A wireless dispatch from Rome states that Essad Pasha, provisional president of Albania, has arrived at Scutari, with Albanian forces, to join the Montenegrin troops which are retiring to that point. The dispatch says these measures are being taken with a view to defending Scutari.

Everyone reads the Want Ads.

A Word to Retailers

This is the age of standardization.

Products of quality are sold under brands and as they are made in large quantities they are sold at low prices.

People prefer them because they are standards of value.

When these brands are newspaper advertised a demand is created among your possible customers.

It is good business to attract the newspaper readers to your store.

This you can do by showing the goods in your window at the time they are being advertised in the newspaper.

Bad Cold Quickly Broken Up.

Mrs. Martha Wilcox, Gowanda, N. Y. writes: "I first used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy about eight years ago. At that time I had a hard cold and coughed most of the time. It proved to be just what I needed. It broke up the cold in a few days, and the cough entirely disappeared. I have told many of my friends of the good I received through using this medicine, and all who have used it speak of it in the highest terms." Obtainable everywhere.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Jackson county people who are interested in the early days of the county, its development and future, are naturally enthusiastic concerning the organization of the Jackson County Historical Society which has been proposed by the Centennial Committee. There has long been felt the need of such an association. It would be valuable not only in collecting data concerning the county, but in preparing records for future use.

In the early days of Jackson county and prior to the organization of the corporation, facilities for recording events were meager. The condition was found in all the early settlements. The newspaper had not come into existence and the people were not inclined to chronicle daily happenings. Many events which would be of intense interest today have been entirely lost. For a generation they were handed down in verbal form but soon their accuracy was questioned and many of them were entirely overlooked. The personal writings of many of the pioneers furnish data for some of the histories that are prepared today, but such diaries are few.

If a systematic attempt were made to collect information about the early life of Indiana and Jackson county such as would be made by a historical society a valuable record could soon be compiled. The manuscripts read before the society ought to be preserved and put in permanent form for future reference. If the centennial committee in this county does nothing else but organize such a society the result would be ample reward for the time devoted to the work.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE.

Rapid progress has been made in the United States during the last few years in the department of vocational education. Through it the pupil is not only given a preliminary training in what he desires to follow as a life work, but is guided in making a selection.

The report of Dr. W. T. Bawden, specialist in industrial education of the United States bureau of education discusses vocational training as follows in his report to the department of Interior:

"Only a few short months ago vocational guidance was conceived of chiefly as a matter of giving to boys and girls advice in the choosing of a life work and assisting in the securing of positions. In view of the ambitious attempts made in a few quarters, and especially the claims of a few concerns that have investigated the commercial possibilities of vocational guidance, extravagant expectations have been raised in the popular mind that have not been realized.

"This conception is rapidly passing, however, and among the leaders of the vocational guidance movement the chief function of their work is now regarded as the study of vocational conditions and opportunities, and the making of the resulting information available to boys and girls.

"The most important service that can be rendered the individual youth, under the name of vocational guidance, is to set him to thinking, at the proper time, about the problem of choosing a life work as a problem to be seriously faced and prepared for—to make him fully conscious of its existence as a problem to be solved, and aware of the sources of data having any bearing on its solution."

"Probably the most serious obstacle to progress in vocational guidance is the aloofness of the school teacher, under ordinary conditions, from much of the world's work, and the practical difficulties in the way of his knowing very much about certain vastly important phases of it through actual participation, or even through close contact."

COURTING DESTRUCTION.
(Indianapolis Star.)

Self-preservation is the first law of nature and it is not surprising that members of the Indiana Retail Liquor Dealers' Association plan to raise a fund of $150,000 to fight extinction. The surprising feature is that the organization should be so short-sighted as to propose to spend that money trying to defeat at the next election all who may be opposed to the liquor traffic. Those interested in the future of the saloon business should see that an attempt at dictation or even reprisals in politics would be disastrous.

The wise course for them to take at this time is to avoid the limelight and enmities. They should realize that the people are in no mood for active participation of the retail liquor dealers in the politics of the state. Much of the hostility is due to the part that traffic has played in politics. Many evils that disgraced elections have been traceable directly to those interested in the saloon business who were successful for a time and whose success made them overconfident. But the pendulum has swung the other way.

In the face of those facts the retail liquor dealers should understand that an attempt at making their business a political issue is simply courting disaster. Their cue is to spend that $150,000 in an effort at overcoming hostility that has been aroused by the undesirables in the business; and by previous political blundering on the part of liquor interests. The saloon may earn tolerance but it can not destroy adverse sentiment by increasing its political activities.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR ISSUING PREMIUM LIST

Prospects Encouraging for the Jackson County Poultry Show at Brownstown Next Month.

Frank Disque, of Brownstown, was here today making arrangements for the premium list for the Jackson County Poultry Show to be held at Brownstown February 14. Prospects are very encouraging for an excellent show and numerous entries are already assured.

County Agent Cobb is giving his personal attention to the exhibit and plans to make it one that will be of interest to the average farmer. While fancy breeders are welcome to bring their birds and premiums will be offered for them emphasis is laid upon the breeds that will be most valuable to the farmer. After the show the county agent expects to make arrangements for closer co-operation among the farmers for the sale of eggs and an attempt will be made to make the standard such that the seal of the association will be sufficient guarantee of quality.

ODD FELLOWS OF COUNTY HAVE SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Degree Meetings Held Last Night
Largely Attended Despite Bad Weather.

TO BE MADE ANNUAL AFFAIR

With two largely attended sessions last night the county I. O. O. F. meeting was brought to a close after a busy day's program. Despite the heavy rain the attendance at both the I. O. O. F. hall, where the subordinate lodge meeting was held, and at the K. of P. hall, where the Rebekah meeting was held, was good, both halls being crowded with local and out of town members of the orders.

At the I. O. O. F. hall the first degree was conferred upon a class of candidates by the degree staff of Seymour lodge in a most impressive manner. Following the degree Grand Master Macbeth was introduced and delivered an address on Odd Fellowship. Mr. Macbeth is a very impressive speaker and his remarks were well received by the large number of Odd Fellows present. Grand Patriarch Stewart also spoke, confining his remarks to the encampment branch of Odd Fellowship. Following the speeches a luncheon and smoker was enjoyed.

At the Rebekah meeting the degree was conferred by Crothersville lodge and the work was highly commended by the Seymour Rebekahs and by visitors from other lodges who were present. Mrs. Mary I. Stipp, president of the Rebekah Assembly, made a very pleasing and helpful address on Rebekah Odd Fellowship, and the following program was rendered: Reading, An Incident of the Three Links.....Mrs. Brethauer. Solo.....Miss Gertrude Robbins. Reading, Those Links of Gold.....Mrs. H. L. Bridges.

Solo.....Mrs. Fay Amick. Reading.....Miss Edna Doane. Mandolin Solo, Magdalene Kasperlain. Following the program a bountiful supper was served in the Woodmen hall on the second floor of the K. of P. building.

The county meeting, which was arranged by District Deputy F. L. Schornick, proved very helpful and stimulating to the membership who were present, and will doubtless result in much good to the order throughout the county. The county meeting will probably be made an annual affair.

JEWS GATHER TO PLAN THE RESTORATION OF PALESTINE

International Congress of Their Race
Arranged—Large Sum Already Pledged.

By United Press.

Chicago, January 22.—A thousand delegates from Jewish organizations throughout America are to gather in Chicago tomorrow to promote the Jewish plans for the development of Palestine and particularly, Jerusalem. They come to plan for an international congress of their race, which is expected to plan the restoration of Palestine to the Jews. Hundreds of thousands of dollars already have been pledged toward this and much already has been accomplished. Louis D. Brandeis, Boston lawyer, who has been prominent among the Zionists, declared that the American Congress of Jews is not indulging in an idle dream. "It is more than a possibility," he said.

DES MOINES PLAN HELD TO BE COMPLETE FAILURE

Councilman Elected to Reorganize Affairs Resigns and Denounces the System.

By United Press.

Des Moines, Ia., January 22.—The so-called Des Moines plan of city government, one of the first forms of Commission government, which attracted much favorable attention the country over when it was adopted seven years ago, is branded a failure by Councilman W. F. Mitchell and a considerable percentage of the citizens. Mitchell was put into office to see if he couldn't reorganize affairs and make the plan successful. His resignation is tendered today, effective this spring. Mitchell says the City Manager plan should be adopted by Des Moines.

The bonded and floating indebtedness of Des Moines has increased nearly $1,000,000 since the plan was put in force seven years ago. The plan was heralded as one that would eliminate partisan politics from all municipal elections, place the responsibility for the success or failure of the city government upon the heads of the individual commissioners and generally make for economy and efficiency. Mitchell says politics has not been eliminated and that financially the plan has accomplished no good. Mitchell favors electing councilmen by districts rather than at large, paying them for one meeting a week. He believes all municipal executive control should be vested in the City Manager, together with power to enforce all laws and ordinances and to control all city work. Mitchell believes this would kill the political phase he believes has made the old Des Moines plan useless.

ARNOLD MARTIN CHAMPION
TWENTY-ACRE FARMER

Nebraskan Wins Prizes in Every Class in International Show in Denver.

By United Press.

Table Rock, Neb., January 22.—Arnold Martin, a former Swiss farmer who resides near here, has attracted international attention as a twenty-acre farmer. Recently at Denver he won prizes in every class, but the thing about which Mr. Martin is most pleased and proud is that corn he raised was selected by the Chinese commissioner at the Panama Pacific exposition to be sent to China, where, under the supervision of the Chinese government experts, the seed is to be propagated, acclimated and adopted.

There are few small farms in this locality, many of them running 160 and even 640 acres. Mr. Martin re-

YUMA, ARIZ., FLOODED

Colorado River Out of Its Banks, Covering Southern Pacific Tracks.

By United Press.

San Diego, Cal., January 22—The Colorado River has broken out of the river banks at Yuma, Ariz., flooding the city and killing at least one man, a telephone message from the scene this afternoon stated. The Southern Pacific tracks are flooded. The situation was critical, according to messages. Charles Moore, a black smith, was drowned.

Seven Keys TO Baldpate

By
EARL DERR BIGGERS

Copyright, 1915, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

He bent his dim old eyes on his food, and Mr. Magee gazed at him with a new wonder. Odd sentiments these from an old man who robbed fireplaces, held up hermits and engaged in midnight conferences by the annex door. More than ever Magee was baffled, enthralled, amused. Now Mr. Max leered about the table and contributed his unsavory bit.

"Funny, ain't it," he remarked, "the different things the same word means to a bunch of folks. Say romance to me and I don't see no dim laboratory. I don't see nothing dim. I see the brightest lights in the world and the best food and somebody, maybe, dancing the latest freak dance in between the tables. And an orchestra playing in the distance—classy dames all about—a taxi clicking at the door. And me sending word to the chauffeur, 'Let her click till the milk carts rattle—I can pay.' Say, that sure is romance to me."

"Mr. Hayden," remarked Magee, "are we to hear from you?"

Hayden hesitated and looked for a moment into the black eyes of Myra Thornhill.

"My idea has often been contradicted," he said, keeping his gaze on the girl; "it may be again. But to me the greatest romance in the world is the romance of money making—dollar piling on dollar in the vaults of the man who started with a shoestring and hope and nerve. I see him fighting for the first thousand—and then I see his pile growing, slowly at first—faster—faster—faster—until a motor-car brings him to his office, and men speak his name with awe in the streets."

"Money," commented Miss Thornhill contemptuously. "What an idea of romance for a man!"

"I did not expect," replied Hayden, "that my definition would pass unchallenged. My past experiences—he looked meaningfully at the girl—"had led me to be prepared for that. But it is my definition—I spoke the truth. You must give me credit for that."

"I ain't one to blame you," sneered Cargan, "for wanting it noticed when you do sidestep a lie. Yes, I certainly—"

"See here, Cargan," blazed Hayden. "Yes, you did speak the truth," put in Miss Thornhill hastily. "You mentioned one word in your definition. It was a desecration to drag it in—hope. For me romance means only—hope. And I'm afraid there are a pitiful number in the world to whom it means the same."

"We ain't heard from the young woman who started all this fuss over a little word," Mr. Cargan reminded them.

"That's right, dearie," said Mrs. Norton. "You got to contribute."

"Yes," agreed the girl with the "locks crisped like golden wire." "I will, but it's hard. One's ideas change so rapidly. A moment ago if you had said romance to me I might have babbled of shady corners, of whisperings on the stair, of walks down the mountain in the moonlight or even on the hotel balcony." She smiled gayly at Magee.

"Perhaps tomorrow, too, the word might mean such rapturous things to me. But tonight—life is too real and earnest tonight. Service—Professor Bolton was right—service is often romance. It may mean the discovery of a serum—it may mean so cruel a thing as the blighting of another's life romance." She gazed steadily at the stolid Cargan. "It may mean putting an end forever to those picturesque parades past the window of the little room on Main street—the room where the boys can always find the mayor of Reuton."

Still she gazed steadily into Cargan's eyes. And with an amused smile the mayor gazed back.

"You wouldn't be so cruel as that," he assured her easily; "a nice, attractive girl like you."

The dinner was at an end. Without a word the sly little professor rose from the table and hurriedly ascended the stairs. Mr. Magee watched him disappear and resolved to follow quickly on his heels. But first he paused to give his own version of the word under discussion.

"Strange," he remarked, "that none of you gets the picture I do. Romance—it is here—at your feet in Baldpate inn. A man climbs the mountain to be alone with his thoughts, to forget the melodrama of life, to get away from the swift action of the world and meditate. He is alone for very near an hour. Then a telephone bell tinkles and a youth rises out of the dark to prate of a lost Arabella and haberdashery. A shot rings out, as the immemorial custom with shots, and in comes a professor of comparative literature, with a perforation in his derby hat. A professional hermit arrives to teach the amateur the fine points of the game. A charming maid comes in—too late for breakfast—but in plenty of time for walks on the balcony in the moonlight. The mayor of a municipality condescends to stay for dinner. A battle in the snow ensues. There is a weird talk of a sum of money. More guests arrive. Dark hints of a seventh key. Why, bless you, you needn't stir from Baldpate inn in search of your romance."

He crossed the floor hastily and put one foot on the lower step of Baldpate's grand stairway. He kept it there. For from the shadows of the landing Professor Bolton emerged, his blasted derby once more on his head, his overcoat buttoned tight, his earmuffs in place, his traveling bag and green umbrella in tow.

"What, professor," cried Magee, "you're leaving?"

Now, truly, the end of the drama had come. Mr. Magee felt his heart beat wildly.

"Yes," the old man was saying slowly. "I am about to leave. The decision came suddenly. I am sorry to go. Certainly I have enjoyed these chance meetings."

"See here, Doc," said Mr. Bland, uneasily feeling of his purple tie, "you're not going back and let them reporters have another fling at you?"

"I fear I must," replied the old man. "My duty calls. Yes, they will hound me. I shall hear much of peroxide blonds. I shall be asked again to name the ten greatest in history—a difficult, not to say dangerous task. But I must face the—er—music, as the vulgar expression goes. I bid you goodby, Mr. Bland. We part friends, I am sure."

He turned to Magee.

"I regret more than I can say," he continued, "parting from you. My eyes fell upon you first on entering this place. We have had exciting times together. My dear Miss Norton, knowing you has refreshed an old man's heart. I might compare you to another with yellow locks, but I leave that to my younger—er—colleagues. Mr. Cargan—goodby. My acquaintance with you I shall always look back on."

But the mayor of Reuton, Max and Bland closed in on the old man.

"Now, look here, Doc," interrupted Cargan. "You're bluffing. Do you get me? You're trying to put something over. I don't want to be rough. I like you. But I got to get a glimpse at the inside of that satchel. And I got to examine your personal makeup a bit."

"Dear, dear!" smiled Professor Bolton. "You don't think I would steal? A man in my position? Absurd! Look through my poor luggage if you desire. You will find nothing but the usual appurtenances of travel."

He stood docilely in the middle of the floor and blinked at the group around him.

Mr. Magee waited to hear no more. Quietly and quickly he disappeared up the broad stair and tried the professor's door. It was locked. Inside he could hear a window banging back and forth in the storm. He ran through No. 7 and out upon the snow covered balcony.

There he bumped full into a shadowy figure hurrying in the opposite direction.

Berlin Says Allies Spent $1,250,000,000 on the Peninsula.

It has been estimated in Berlin that the allies spent $1,250,000,000 in the Dardanelles enterprise, besides the losses in trading ships and warships.

Constantinople reported that the allies were so certain of the conquest of Constantinople they had planned to divide the city into three parts, to be governed by the English, French and Russians.

Furthermore, it was stated that 1,000 civil officers were stationed on the island of Mudros last April ready to take charge when Constantinople fell.

VILLA'S DEFIANCE CAUSES A CRISIS BETWEEN MEXICO AND UNITED STATES

Story of the Killing of Eighteen Americans Described by Sole Survivor of Party of Miners. He Hid In Bushes and Slipped Away.

HUNDREDS of Americans are leaving Mexico every day following the wholesale execution of men and women in and around Chihuahua by Villa followers. Villa has little love for this country since the administration recognized Carranza as president of Mexico. It is stated that in order to embarrass Carranza and America and probably to bring about intervention on our part he has executed these citizens.

Action by this country was the subject of a spirited debate in congress, and the question was discussed from every angle. Senators, especially those from the states near the Mexican border, urged intervention in strong terms. Most prominent among these were Senator Fall of New Mexico and Senator Borah of Idaho.

Immediately after the murders Secretary of State Lansing sent a note to President Carranza demanding the punishment of the Villa men guilty of butchering the nineteen men killed at Santa Ysabel after being stripped of their clothing.

Only One Man Escaped.

Of the party of nineteen miners only one escaped execution. This was Thomas B. Holmes of El Paso, whose story of the tragedy is most interesting. Mr. Holmes said:

"Our train left Chihuahua city Monday morning, Jan. 10, at about 11 o'clock. The train was stopped at or about the Ranch Baeza, a point about five miles west of Santa Ysabel, between 1:30 and 2 o'clock that afternoon. While the train was standing at the station of Santa Ysabel two armed Mexicans rode by and scrutinized the train. The Mexican passengers at Santa Ysabel told me afterward that the riders had inquired if there were any soldiers on the train."

"At the point of the massacre our train was stopped in a cut so that the last car was just inside of the cut. We were stopped by another train, the front trucks of one of the coal cars of which were seen to be off the track. This was the first we knew of a train preceding us. There was nobody to be seen around the train in front."

"When our train was stopped Newman and I were sitting together, and Evans came up and looked out of our window. Evans, Newman, MacHatten and I then got off the train. Watson was either getting off or about to do so, behind us, when I looked back and saw him."

"Just after alighting I heard a volley of rifle shots from a point on the other side of the cut and just above the train. Looking around, I could see a bunch of about twelve or fifteen men standing in a solid line, shoulder to shoulder, shooting directly at us. They were fifty or seventy-five feet away. The coach cut off my view, so I could not see how many bandits there were. The depth of the cut on the side near Santa Ysabel river at that point was about two feet. On the other side it was much greater. To the rear of the train was an embankment declining toward the river."

Hid In Thick Bushes.

"Watson, after getting off, ran toward the river. MacHatten and I followed. MacHatten fell. I do not know whether he was killed then or stripped. Watson kept running, and they were still shooting at him when I turned and ran down grade, where I fell in some brush, probably 100 feet from the rear of the train. I lay there perfectly quiet and looked around and could see the Mexicans shooting in the direction in which Watson was running."

"I saw that they were not shooting at me, and, thinking they believed me already dead, I took a chance and crawled into some thicker bushes. I crawled through the bushes until I reached the bank of the stream. I then made my way to a point probably 100 yards from the train. There I lay under the bank for half an hour and heard shots by ones, twos and threes. "I did not hear any sort of groans or yells or cries from our Americans."

Tragedy Brings Forth Demand by Several Senators For Immediate Armed Intervention. Would Have Guilty Men Arrested.

Then I continued farther under the bank, wading the stream part of the time, until I reached a point probably 200 yards from the train. There I remained half or three-quarters of an hour. Later, after going to several ranches and picking my way cautiously for several miles, I met up with an unknown Mexican, who directed me to Chihuahua city. I reached Chihuahua city Tuesday morning about 7:30 o'clock. The foregoing facts are of my personal knowledge."

E. Ben Ootestad, who arrived in El Paso with Mr. Holmes, stated that he had met him in Chihuahua city.

"Holmes was badly scared," he said, "and feared to enter the city at first. He had an old blanket over his shoulders and no hat. He thought the bandits were laying for Watson particularly."

"When the bodies reached the capital it was noted that each had been shot through the forehead. All Americans in Chihuahua were prepared to come to the border when I left because it was uncertain whether the garrison was for or against Carranza."

Villa Hated Watson Most.

General Villa's personal animosity against C. R. Watson, whom he believed to have interfered with his ambition to be recognized by the United States as provisional president of Mexico, is said by some of the mining men in El Paso to have been the driving motive of the Chihuahua tragedy.

Mr. Watson as chairman of the group of operators, most of whom are classified as independents, was aggressive and able. He had much to do with the relations of the group to the Mexican rulers. In the varying fortunes of the leaders he became well known to them.

The story goes that at the time General Hugh L. Scott was holding parleys with Villa in the middle of bridges Villa expected full recognition. It was his custom to boast that certain pledges had been made to him by General Scott. When the United States recognized Carranza the rage of Villa knew no bounds, and it is currently reported that among the objects of his hatred was Watson. Villa, it is said, got the impression that Watson had undermined him with the American authorities. Resentment against the United States and its citizens flamed high, and the circumstances were aggravated by the recent efforts, in which Mr. Watson was a director, for the opening up of the mines.

In advocating armed intervention in congress, Senator Fall said in part:

"If I were in the White House I would get the greatest, biggest American flag I could find, and I should put it on a great tall pole. I'd take those 5,000 troops of ours at El Paso and I'd put them on trains en route for Chihuahua. There are plenty of such trains, and they're running now. And I'd take those troops and that great, big flag to the exact spot where those Americans were murdered, and there I'd detain those troops and plant that flag in the very ground consecrated by the blood of those murdered Americans. And there that flag would stay until Americans were able to travel on any train in any part of Mexico with absolute safety."

Says Women Have Suffered.

Senator Borah, speaking of the crime, said:

"Five years ago next March, Mr. President, seven American citizens were murdered just on this side of the border line near Douglas, Ariz., and eleven others were wounded. I have never talked with any one who has had trouble in Mexico who did not say that the Mexican people expected at that time to see the American people."

SISTER: READ MY FREE OFFER!

I am a woman. I know a woman's trials. I know her need of sympathy and help. If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week. If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging-down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast, or a general feeling that life is not worth living.

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember, it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial. If health is worth asking for, then accept my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Woman's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers post-paid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address,

MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box H, SOUTH BEND, IND.

In harmony with their ancient traditions, enter upon a decisive and positive policy for the protection of the American citizens.

"With that incident began that compromising sidestepping, procrastinating, apologizing and un-American policy of leaving the American citizen to struggle for himself against the bandits of an adjoining country."

"We have had five years of it, and the culmination in my judgment is not yet, although we have carried to us the fact that American citizens, each carrying a passport, as I understand, from the state department or from its representative—no doubt it was a great consolation to them as they stood stripped and naked to be shot—were lined up against the wall of a house and shot. That is only a part of the story.

"For five years American women have suffered outrage worse a thousand times than death to them; for five years American citizens have suffered death in the ways that a man's language is inadequate to describe."

"Shall we wait longer to know whether or not a sidestepping, compromising policy is either going to insure protection to our citizens or dignity and honor to the American flag? I do not know what others would do, nor have I the authority to speak for any one except myself, but I would demand of Carranza immediate protection for American citizenship in Mexico, and if he were not able to give that assurance in such a way that no man could doubt that it would be assured, I would intervene in Mexico for the purpose of protecting American rights and American citizens."

"I do not believe anything is to be gained in the long run by this policy of waiting for a nation like Mexico to settle its difficulties when these difficulties involve the rights of our own people."

Two Bandits Caught.

Announcement of the capture of General Jose Rodriguez, General Almeida and several other Villa chieftains by Carranza forces near Madera was received with joy.

Almeida was shot immediately, and summary execution of Rodriguez had been ordered by General Gavira, commanding the garrison at Juarez.

Rodriguez and his followers were taken by Maximo Marquez, a former Villa officer, who surrendered with the Chihuahua army. As Madera is more than a hundred miles north of the point where the Americans were killed, it is believed that they hardly could have been concerned in the massacre. The details of the killing of two additional Americans, George F. Pearson and Bert Kramer, are as follows:

Pearson, whose wife lives in California, was caught out alone in western Chihuahua and murdered. He started out a few months ago to prospect close to the Hearst ranch. He had little money with him. General Rodriguez is said to have killed Pearson.

Kramer had lived in Mexico for many years. He was taken from his home and shot, supposedly by the same bandits who had made the attack on the American miners.

Baldheaded.

Uncle Jack asked little Cella if she didn't want him to play in the game with her.

from are not a legitimate part of the cost of the operation of industry.

"The dominant and paramount purpose of the workmen's compensation law is the promotion of the prevention of industrial accidents. In the matter of accident prevention the whole duty does not rest on the employer. The employee has a duty in respect thereto. Safety first and all the time is the real motto of the Indiana workmen's compensation act.

"To the end that this may be attained the statute requires the employer to safeguard and protect the machinery and appliances. To the end that the employee may discharge his part of the obligation in accident prevention the statute has placed upon him the duty of guarding himself, at least to this extent, that he shall not depart himself that his injury and the land was cleared, the soil tilled, grain harvested and finally the modern methods used on the farm. A splendid opportunity will be given to have a most interesting display and the day will likely be one of the most important of Centennial week. The pageant will likely be held at the county poor farm where ample room would be given for the exhibits.

Three or four days of the celebration will be held here. However, if any other town desires to have one day arrangements will be made according to their request. It is planned to make one day of the local celebration a Home Coming Day. The plans for the local celebration will be left largely in the hands of the Jackson township committee and the details will be worked out later. The suggestion, however, met with the approval of the committee.

J. E. Payne, chairman of the committee on local celebrations, recommended that each township arrange its own celebration. Superintendent Thomas suggested that the local celebrations be held in connection with the public schools. He said that practically all the schools have a domestic science, agricultural and manual training display at the close of the school term or at some other time of the year and that the celebration could be arranged at that time in each township. He further suggested that the patrons and friends of the schools and the citizens generally be given an invitation to visit the displays and that a special historical program be arranged. A basket dinner at noon would be a feature of the day, according to his suggestion. Superintendent Thomas' idea was warmly received by the committee and it is likely that the schools will have an important place in the township celebrations. Speakers would be engaged to give addresses in county and state history, he recommended.

The report of the Memorial committee was made by M. S. Blish. He read the communication he recently received from George Pence, a member of the state board of accounts, concerning the intersection of the Wayne and Grouseman treaty lines near this city and recommended that at least two markers be erected in the county at this time. He thought the intersection of the treaty lines and the site of the old fort at Valonia would be splendid places for markers. The treaty lines meet a short distance from the main road, it is stated, and Mr. Blish recommended that the marker be placed in the highway where it could be plainly seen by travelers and that it be designated thereon where the exact location could be found, probably marking the spot with a small stone.

Superintendent Thomas gave a splendid report on the organization of the Jackson County Historical Society. He recommended that the February meeting, Saturday, February 26, be open to the public and that the society be launched at that time. He said that this is a most opportune time to organize such an association and that many of the older citizens of the county can give much information that is desirable. He favored a permanent society as a means of stimulating interest in Jackson county and her advancement.

Mr. Thomas recommended further that each township offer a first and second prize for the history of the corporation. He believed such a contest would do much towards arousing interest in the proposed society and at the same time presenting important data before the members. He thinks that all contributions and papers should be preserved and placed in permanent form for future reference.

All of the committees were retained. Another committee, the ways and means committee, was appointed as follows: D. A. Kochenour, Brownstown, C. R. Jackson, Cortland, A. Summers, Crothersville, Alpha Cox, and M. S. Blish, Seymour. This committee will devise the best manner of financing the several celebrations that are planned. Mr. Blish said he thought each township should raise the necessary funds for its own celebration and there should be no general fund for this purpose. He said that inasmuch as Seymour would probably have a longer celebration than the other towns the expense should be borne by Jackson township people. In this way the various townships would be responsible for the expense that is incurred.

The representatives attending the meeting were enthusiastic over the prospects and believed that the people of the county were heartily in favor of appropriately observing the centennial of the state and county.

Among those present at the meeting were: Superintendent Mott, Alpha Cox and M. S. Blish, Seymour, Mrs. Walter Patrick, Jackson township, Jesse Collins and E. G. Cobb, Washington township, L. C. Gillespie, Warren Burge and O. M. Foster and A. Summers, Vernon township, J. H. Thomas, Medora, J. E. Payne, county superintendent, D. A. Kochenour and A. D. Cobb, Brownstown, C. R. Jackson, Cortland, Henry Aldredge, Valonia.

7:30 o'clock they came across the body of King some ten feet from the little cabin, in which he made his home.

They immediately carried the body inside the cabin and telephoned the news of the death to this city. Deputy Coroner Roach went to the scene about 9 o'clock Thursday night and held an inquest. He found that death had been due to heart trouble. There were some bruises upon the head where King had struck a stone in his fall.

The body rested on the right side when found and the soft mud where the body had fallen, showed that there had been no struggle.

The actions of the dog excited the interest of those present, and but for the presence of the three young men who were on friendly terms with it, there would have been trouble.

During the coroner's inquest, the dog darted into the house when someone opened the door and ran to the bed. It reared up on the bed and its general appearance showed that it would stand for no interference. Jumping upon the bed and between the body of King and the wall, the dog with one paw gently touched the face of the dead man, then his breast. The dog then took his other paw and went through the same performance.

During this little exhibition, the dog was so decidedly hostile to the little party gathered there that no one dared to interfere. The dog then jumped down and darted under the bed, growling at those in the room. The young men that the dog had known for years, finally were able to approach the canine and to get it out of the room.

King was born in Kentucky and a short time ago told some of his friends that he was fifty years of age. He came to the Root farm about seven or eight years ago and had resided in a little cabin near the river ever since. He trapped, hunted, dug mussels and tended small tracts of land near his cabin. He also worked as a farm hand, but recently his ill health had caused him to become a charge of the township.

Relatives at Mitchell had signified a willingness to look after him, and Thursday it had been planned to take him to Mitchell. The weather was too bad to make the trip however.

King also looked after the Cherokee cabin, and was familiarly known as "Lucky" by his many friends in this city.

The body will be taken to Mitchell by relatives and the funeral and burial will be held there.

DISTRICT MEETING AT NORTH VERNON

ruling that the state conventions will have some of such nominations to make. In regard to candidate for President and Vice-President the finding is that they must have a majority of first-choice votes cast in order to receive the support of the state delegation. Section No. 28 of the law is to be followed in tabulating the votes for President, Vice-President, senator and Governor, but the process of elimination will not be effective unless by the elimination one of the candidates receives a majority of the first choice votes cast.

Those who attended from this county were Judge O. H. Montgomery, Judge John M. Lewis, of Seymour, Dr. A. May and County Chairman Frank Brady, of Crothersville.

ANNA BELLE Attends a Church Bazaar

Dear Friends:—Of course you have at some time been interested in a church bazaar. Our church was in debt for a new addition so we young folks decided to help pay it off by giving a bazaar. It was a big success and the debt was all cleared except about $5, I think, and we're all very happy about it. Uncle Ezra helped us very much when he donated $25. I tell you my dear Uncle Ezra is always ready to help us in every way. He has done a great deal of good through our SEWING SOCIETY.

I am so happy to know that so many of you are doing great things in SEWING SOCIETY work. It ought to make all our hearts glad to know that we're helping poor girls and boys who have never had a chance like you and me. We ought to be very thankful that we have our good mothers and daddies to look after us. We want to make our Society a great household word of good cheer and good deeds for the poor. Lovingly,

Anna Belle
